GOULD 40-MEXICO 32 IN WEDNESDAY GAME

Gould Academy was pressed to the limit Wednesday night at Mexico but a 16 point scoring spree in the final period gave the Huskies victory. Gould was out front most of the game but not by much. The Pintos went ahead 27-26 for a brief moment early in the fourth period but two free throws by Charlie Smith gave Gould the lead again, which they increased as the game went on.

It was a hard fought battle with 37 fouls being called, the locals losing Bennett and Smith on fouls while the Pintos lost Burns.

The Gould J. Vs. won an easy 49-21 victory with Lowell scoring 21 points and Agnes 13.

KATHERINE DAY THURSTON

Born March 14, 1889 Died Dec. 16, 1948

The shadows have lengthened, the evening is here, and the work of a good friend and neighbor is done.

But the memory of this kind and generous woman will live in the hearts of her family and her legion of friends. Our community has been a happier and a better one for her having lived among us.

Mrs. Thurston was born on Prince Edward Island and was left motherless when a baby. As a child of ten years she came to Newry and was reared in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Thurston. For her foster family she maintained a strong loyalty not lessened by the passing of years or the forming of new responsibilities. Thirty-seven years ago she married Wade H. Thurston of this town and they have since lived on lower Main Street.

Four children were born into this happy home and with their father survive to mourn the loss of their devoted mother. They are Mrs. Mary Katherine Rice of Fort Pepperell, Newfoundland; Floyd Thurston and Mrs. Josephine Whitman of Bethel; and Mrs. Christie Knight of Rumford.

To her husband and children and countless friends she brought a rich and warm affection. For her generous hospitality and open door she will ever be remembered.

To motherless children and homeless older people her home was a welcome refuge. There was always time in her busy day for generosity and love and kindness for those in need. And hers was not a thin or superficial charity. She reinforced her kind thoughts by generous and substantial gifts. She never went to call on a sick neighbor with empty hands.

As her children married she welcomed her daughters' husbands, and her son's wife as her own. To them and to many of the children of her neighbors and friends she occupied a place akin to a mother's.

A funeral service of beauty and dignity was conducted by Rev. K. W. Hawthorne on the afternoon of Dec. 15 from Greenleaf's funeral home. Burial was in the family lot at Riverside Cemetery. Beneath a profusion of winter flowers, beside the gentle river and guarded by the sentinel hills, Cassie, valued friend, a precious mother and a beloved wife awaits the coming of eternity.

And through the storm and tempest, safely sheltered, just on the other side.

We'll find her dear face looking through the shadows, not changed, but glorified.

WESTERN MAINE FIREMEN'S MEETING HELD AT FRYEBURG

A most satisfactory meeting of the Western Maine Firemen's Association was held Monday evening, December 13, at the Legion Hall in Fryeburg.

The meeting for the purpose of acting on resolutions and suggestions made at a director's meeting the previous week. These resolutions consisted mainly of having research work done on the proposed State legislation as regards fire emergency plans and set-up.

Two very capable guest speakers outlined the State's plans. One was Deputy Forest Commissioner Austin H. Wilkins of Augusta, who gave a very interesting explanation of the State's proposed "Chain of Command" method of meeting the forest fire menace.

Following Mr. Wilkins, State Senator-elect Roland H. Cobb, of Denmark, filled in the rest of the answers to queries.

Brief remarks were made by National Forest Warden S. J. Hille of South Paris, and Forest Warden Lon Wight of Newry.

An hour of motion pictures were enjoyed after the business meeting, and lunch was served in the basement dining room.

Membership is increasing all the time with Conway, N. H., joining our ranks Monday night, and Hebron a recent member. The Fryeburg meeting boasted a gathering of 65 members. As it gains membership and momentum, the association will be active and important enough to be worthy of any town's notice, large or small.

The next meeting time and place has been left pending, as there are hopes of making it a huge one, and somewhat more centralized to enable everyone to get there.

BETHEL PLAYERS TO HOLD ANNUAL ELECTION

Officers for the coming year will be elected and considerable business of immediate and future importance to the organization will be acted upon at the December meeting of the Bethel Players scheduled for next Monday evening at the Community Room.

Every member is urged to attend this meeting and, if possible, to bring another or others to affiliate with the group for the coming season's proposed program of entertainment and community service.

The first season for the Bethel Players has been one of notable achievement. The two stage offerings, "Adam's Evening," and "Armenic and Old Lace," were admirably presented to highly appreciative audiences and more entertainment of the same high calibre is scheduled for the winter and spring.

All committees have functioned smoothly and efficiently in cooperation with capable officers headed by President Roland Glines and the club is definitely filling a major role in community life. The membership rolls are open to all who desire association with fun-loving and civic minded citizens in all age groups.

TOGUS PATIENTS MAY HAVE RECORDS FOR OWN DOCTORS ON DISCHARGE FROM HOSPITAL

The VA Hospital at Togus has adopted a policy by which patients are encouraged to request that hospitalization records be made available to their private physicians at the time of their discharge from the hospital. M. L. Stoddard, manager of the Veterans Administration in Maine, revealed today.

According to Stoddard, here's how the plan works: At the time of his discharge the patient is advised of his right to request that certain information be made available to his home-town doctor. It is suggested to the patient that the Final Summary Report would contain useful information in his future visits to his private physician.

The patient who accepts the suggestion indicates in writing his consent to the release of information from the hospital record. He also furnishes the name and address of his doctor, which are checked for accuracy by hospital personnel.

The Final Summary is dictated with a separate paragraph entitled "Suggestions for Post Hospital Care." A copy is sent to the designated physician with a covering letter explaining that the information was sent at the request of the patient and that the report is to be treated as a privileged communication.

Stoddard said he expected the procedure to assist home-town doctors in their continuation of treatment by furnishing them background facts in the case. Also, by serving to weld into one continuing course of treatment both hospital and post-hospital phases, the plan should assist in speeding the recovery of the patient.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY

The American Legion Auxiliary met at the Legion Rooms, Dec. 14. Mrs. Raymond Dexter reported on her trip to the gift shop at Togus, Dec. 9.

The Oxford County Council will meet at the Legion Rooms Dec. 21. The refreshment committee is: Mrs. Hilda Donahue, Mrs. Gladys Bean, Mrs. Wilfred Baker, and Mrs. Albert Buck.

SKI CLUB BY-LAWS ADOPTED MONDAY

There was a large attendance of local citizens, both old and young, at the organizational meeting of the Bethel Ski and Outing Club at the Community Room Monday evening. The by-laws as set up by the officers were adopted by the group and after the meeting nearly everyone present joined the club.

Jim Thorpe of Augusta gave a talk on ski equipment and showed some samples.

Dues were fixed at 50 cents for members under 18 and $1.00 for those older. Membership entitles one to use the tow at a reduced rate and also to buy ski equipment at a discount through the club. A membership drive will be underway the first of next week with Dr. Willard Boynton, chairman.

The directors of the club held their meeting after the ski meeting and chairmen for special committees were elected as follows: property, John Howe; personnel, Richard Young; special events, Addison Saunders; publicity, Stanley Davis; membership, Dr. Willard Boynton; rate and tickets, Wilbur Myers; concessions, Kimball Ames.

Work on the slope has progressed very well and the tow will have its grand opening as soon as there is a sufficient amount of snow.

The by-laws give the name of the club as The Bethel Ski and Outing Club, Inc. and state that it shall be incorporated as a social club for the promotion of skiing and other forms of recreation for the benefit of the people of Bethel, and any others using its facilities.

CHRISTMAS CAROLS

In previous years there have been at least two small groups of Christmas carolers around Christmas time. This year it has been planned so that the singers from both of the churches will go together Sunday, Dec. 19, to go in a large group to sing to the shut-ins and others.

Several Academy students, college students home on vacation, and also grammar school students, have already volunteered to come. So, if you want to have some fun and also give others a Merry Christmas meet at the Methodist Church at 6:30 Sunday evening.

The girls' clubs of both churches have offered to serve the group hot cocoa and sandwiches on their return from the excursion.

Reign of the Bureaucracy
"Bureaucracy" is a misused-over but not outmoded term. Its popularity seems to use the term less and less. I fear that all too many folks have assumed that government by bureaucracy is here to stay, that no matter what brand of national administration you have, the emphasis will still be on Washington. Yet, to welcome an increasing reign of bureaucracy is to invite totalitarianism. The battle against political encroachments upon the lives of our people still can be won. When the facts are carried straight to the bar of public opinion, I believe informed Americans will repudiate this reign of bureaucracy. For a generation, the scope of government's power has extended outward from the federal center. People are tired of abuses that come in the wake of bureaucracy.

Beyond the Law
Do you realize that some 1,200 federal bureaus now exist to dominate, control, and restrain every manner of human activity? Back of these bureaus eleven government agencies function as corporations and 44 actually exist as corporations. The majority of these have little constitutional justification. Compliance with constitutional law is not important to these bureaus and agencies. Neither is the spirit of individual enterprise, which is so much a part of American tradition.

These agencies feel they are beyond the law and the spirit of the constitution. While competing with the private enterprise of citizens, these federal corporations indulge in wasteful, extravagant, and corrupt practices. A screen of bureaucratic confusion, with the help of garbled records and false accounting methods, hides them from full public view. These methods resemble those of the monarchies of old.

No Rent, No Taxes
Federal corporations that compete with the enterprises of private citizens have rare advantages. They pay no rent, and decline to refer to this in their bookkeeping. They are simply "operating government property." They pay no taxes, like the corporations with which they compete. They are "the government," and their purpose is to consume taxes. Tax money is gift for their misdeeds.

Despite having to pay no rent and no taxes, federal corporations are estimated by one source as having used up $4,000,000,000 more than they earned in the year ending last June. Moreover, they have a free rein on costs. Loans added to well-hidden costs are estimated to make up a full third of the annual federal budget. All this cost is a huge burden on the productivity of our citizens. Such wastefulness has no place in this people's republic.

Consider the effect on our nation now if we could eliminate one-third of the tax requirement! Not only would we have needed money for world rehabilitation and for retiring the national debt. While establishing a sound federal economy by eliminating these needless government costs, we would increase the standard of living for everyone. But most important, by ending the reign of bureaucracy, we would halt the march toward totalitarianism!

Dale Carnegie

Author of "HOW TO WIN FRIENDS AND INFLUENCE PEOPLE"

CHILDREN NEED GOOD COMPANY

WHAT kind of company are your children keeping? All of you probably have read, or had told to you, the story of the father who warned his son against some of his playmates, and the son who replied that even though those playmates might do some wrong, he would not follow their example. Then the father took the boy to the storage bin, picked up a half-rotten apple and placed it in a box of sound apples. A week later he took the boy back to that storage bin—and the expected had happened. The former good apples were now partly rotten.

Yesterday a woman who works now and then in my home asked to change her regular day for another. On the day she was supposed to come to my home, she found she would be allowed to visit her son. The son was in a house of correction! He was sent there when he was one month past his eighteenth birthday. I hadn't known about this, but I had known that the mother reared him in Harlem, New York's so-called den of iniquity. Harlem is considered such a tough section of the city that R. H. Macy's delivery man told me once that they never went there to make deliveries without an armed bodyguard in the van with them.

The mother said that her son had never spent a night away from home until he was sent away by the authorities; that his sentence was the result of association with bad company which she had not been able to shield him from.

She said further that "the gang" forced him to commit the offense which "sent him up," and that he alone was paying the penalty, that the more experienced escaped.

So watch your child's playmates. If there is a child with natural leadership who does not wield the right influence your child will suffer from association with him. Maybe you can help this boy, if you will give the time to him, but you can't afford to sacrifice your child.

THIS WEEK IN Washington

WITH heavy budgetary expenditures coming up before the next congress for national defense, which includes the Marshall plan and other foreign aid, the word has gone out to governmental agencies from President Truman's executive department to slash expenditures to the bone. As a matter of fact, for the 1950 fiscal year which starts next July 1, the order has been that governmental agencies must cut to absorb the pay increase for personnel which was granted by the 80th congress.

It will be remembered that most federal agencies received a $300 annual pay increase for federal workers with a flat $450 annual boost being given the post office department at the hands of the 80th congress. The postoffice department, however, is one department which is expected to be given additional funds to meet its pay raises. This department runs in the red anyway and although the department annually asks congress to give it sufficient revenues to put it on a paying basis, the congress, looking to the "folks back home who might kick about additional postage costs in either first, second or third class mail, merely forks over deficits each year, in the form of subsidies to the department.

Senator William E. Jenner (R., Ind.) has gathered a lot of evidence in election investigations which he likely will never use. Senator Jenner is chairman of a sub-committee of the senate privileges and elections committee and has been investigating senatorial elections in West Virginia, Tennessee, Texas, Oklahoma and other states. The GOP plan was that if Democrats won in these states, the Republican majority in the senate would question their election and hold up the swearing-in process. However, the Democratic senatorial candidates won not only in these states but in enough other states to give the Democrats a majority in the senate so now the possibility of any long drawn-out election contest against these Democrats is virtually eliminated and party reorganization of the senate will likely take place on a cut-and-dried basis, but with the Democrats in command.

There is every likelihood that the next congress early on its agenda will take up extension of the reciprocal trade agreements act on a three-year basis as was done prior to the action of the 80th congress. The last congress made an extension of only one year and hemmed the power of the President to such an extent that his action was dependent only upon congressional approval. Most trade organizations and lobbying or pressure groups favor the extension of the reciprocal trade act as originally proposed but strangely enough while large business organizations are for the extension, some of the smaller business trade groups are against, or split on their stand toward extension.

Another revision of existing law likely to be taken up early in the session will be that of the displaced persons act. This act was the only law of the 80th congress which Governor Thomas E. Dewey, the GOP presidential candidate asked to be revised at the hands of the Republican majority. Mainly through the opposition of Senator Chapman Revercomb (R., West Va.), however, no revision was forthcoming and Senator Revercomb was defeated for reelection. Some Democratic leaders claim the act as now constituted discriminates against Catholics and Jews and other European nationals who fled before the Russians to concentration camps.

There is considerable discussion in Washington this week over possible congressional action toward revision of the charter of the United Nations in some respects. While congressional action cannot actually revise the charter, a congressional resolution placed before the United Nations body to be voted upon by that organization might have standing with members and delegates. The American Legion and the Amvets have adopted resolutions urging a modified use of the veto power, used so consistently by Russia, and an arms production limitation, and the Legion is demanding adoption of the United States formula for atom control and the creation of a world police force under the Security Council.

The American Federation of Labor adopted a resolution asking the UN social and economic council to introduce a measure making it a crime against international law for any government to have a fifth column in a country with which it is at peace.

STREAMLINED BAD TASTE

DEVASTATING wars, as a matter of course, bring out the evil traits in us humans. We can't expect to enjoy the pleasure of murdering each other by the millions and, at the same time, develop our better attributes. Just as the nature of your pet dog degenerates after fighting other dogs—so does ours. Under the skin—and just under—we are animals also. We consider ourselves civilized, and maybe we will be in a 100,000 years unless—in the meantime—we destroy the little ground we have thus far gained.

This sage preamble is leading up to an observation upon the "cycle of decadence in art through which the world is passing. Very rarely now-a-days does the artistic fraternity produce better than mediocre talent. Consider the painting of today; if there exists a more startling commentary on human degeneracy, then it can only be found in that cacophonous "decay" which goes by the name of "music."

Why can't we produce a Holbein or a Bruegel any longer? Why not a Brahms or a Beethoven? And, above all, why can't we produce within ourselves the good taste, and the independence, to repudiate the burlesque of today whose pigment, and discordant, horrors will be laughed at tomorrow—provided—we renounce mass murder long enough to regain our judgment.

It may seem a bit far-fetched to drag in mechanical objects to illustrate the argument that we are drifting through the low tide of art. But allow yourself a long, honest, appraising look at almost any 1948 or 1949 American automobile and you will see a product of mechanical genius clothed in the habiliments of imagery gone mad; a marvel of the Machine Age surrounded by a mishapen conglomerate of tin and chromium; a pot-bellied monstrosity occupying a quite unnecessary amount of the limited space soon to be required by our growing population; a pressure-cooker for the occupants of the rear seat who must roast under the accumulator of ultra-red rays which takes the place of a rear window; a great engineering achievement made almost laughable by the excesses of outstanding designers of bad taste! Did this war bankrupt their capacities—or were they plumbers to begin with?

Say you saw it in the CITIZEN.

LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

Little business versus Big business. You know, listening, if you do, to the big talk by windy but little guys in politics on why the big kind of business is different and terrible and should be throttled or taxed off the map, while little business should be given the inside track, makes you wonder—and ponder.

You take a guy starting in his woodshed to make electric irons or something—he is little business—also he is a good citizen, then. And if he makes a 100 per cent rip-off of good iron—everybody wanting one—and gets to turning them out by the carload, I figure he is still a good guy—and should not then be scoffed at or be looked down on or be taxed out of business.

It is time to tune-out the 2 by 4 scantlings who hire themselves a network and tell us citizens that everything is wrong—but he can fix it. Everything is not wrong. In no place on earth are there better jobs or better pay, or a better chance to make a name for yourself, or better bosses. The Big outfit today is just the grown-up little electric iron feller who was startin' in the woodshed a few years back.

Yours with the low down,

Nobody's Business

It is agreed that the advantages of small towns and rural communities are many. The friendliness and cooperation found in communities of our size naturally cannot be duplicated in larger places. In the course of a few years one's life becomes so interwoven that normally a large number of the inhabitants sincerely have the interests of all at heart.

It is no wonder that such an ideal condition is counterbalanced by an opposite force, the mercenary small town gossip which can become one of the most cruel weapons of men, or woman. The town of Bethel is certainly no exception to this rule.

There are all too many cases where lives are blighted or even ruined by the thoughtless or planned efforts of talebearers. Too few of us will take pains to question or squelch interesting rumors at the start. Too often we assume that there is at least a bit of truth in every story. It is entirely possible that the proportion of truth is so very small, and so much of bias or suspicion or envy added, that doubts may be reasonably raised.

We are not so optimistic that we believe that all is for the best, or that conditions cannot be improved. We do believe, however, that our present method of conducting town and school affairs is good. It is our experience that honest complaints or suggestions, when brought to the attention of proper local authority, will bring a satisfactory adjustment or understanding of conditions. Granting of course the right to meet and discuss and "view with alarm" one cannot expect justice when a self-appointed committee sets out to conduct its own investigation.

OVERWORKING THE GOOSE

At the recent convention of the United Mine Workers, a great deal of discussion centered around future demands that the union may make on the soft coal operators. The indications were that these will include still higher wages, still shorter working days, an increase in vacation payments, and so on down the line.

The desire of any working group to get as much as is can be understandable. However, in the case of Golden Text: "The Lord hath prepared his throne in the heavens; and his kingdom ruleth over all" (Psalm 103: 19).

The coal miners, this raises the extremely pertinent question of just where the limit may be. At the present time, 60 cents out of each and every dollar taken in by coal producers goes for labor costs. The industry's profits have been moderate. The only way out, therefore, would be to again boost the cost of coal to the consumer—and that is where the danger lies.

Coal, vital as it is, must be sold in intense competition with all other fuels. If the price should become too high, there would be greater use of these other fuels, and a consequent decline in the use of coal. And then the miners' high-wage jobs would decline.

Right now the soft-coal miners are the highest paid industrial workers in the world. They have made spectacular gains, not only in wages but in living and working conditions, and a long list of tangible benefits. It would be the part of wisdom for them to consider how they may help protect the market for the product that supports them—rather than immerse it with excessive perennial demands.

[#] The Egg and You [#]

by George Peak

Something's got to be done about it, an drigt quick. Just imagine, I went to my pet grocery store today and bought a pound of butter for the paltry sum of 71c, just 28c less than I paid a few weeks ago. What's the matter with the Administration and its economic planners? With the price of butter already down to 71c a pound, and threatening to go even lower, things have come to a pretty pass, indeed!

The first thing you know, most of us will be able to buy a pound of butter without first having to cash in a government bond. And that would be just too bad; that's something the Administration planners must not allow to happen, and you can depend on it, they won't. As for us, we will accept no alibies, no excuses—they can get that price of butter up again—look what they have been able to do with eggs and other foodstuffs.

Let's pause for a moment to see what they've done with eggs. They worked miracles with them. All through the midwest states a spell ago the hens really began to go to work—they stepped up their production. Now, don't blame the poor hens. You see, no one has ever told them about the Government-price-support program, and the danger of creating surpluses. So the first thing you know, egg prices drop below 90% of parity. And that's when the Government egg-buyers went to town. They worked so well that they soon got the situation well in hand—eggs are now back up to 95c a dozen.

Of course, it took a lot of our tax money to accomplish the worthy (?) objective. But what does that matter? Aren't the eggs once again priced so high that we cannot afford to buy them? What do we care about the measly $28,000,000 the Government paid out so far this year up to the middle of October to purchase 2,866,834 cases of eggs (with 30 dozen eggs to the case)?

And don't let it disturb you in the slightest that most of these Government-purchased eggs will be allowed to decompose. The Government boys got 'em away from us didn't they? That's what really counts. The Secretary of Agriculture says, "So far we have gotten rid of $175,000 pounds of these dried eggs. We have donated them to school lunch programs and the like. It's possible that we may sell some of these eggs later."

Don't let that statement alarm you too much. If they do sell them, the dried eggs will be sold at a big loss, and in markets that can affect the price you pay for eggs at the corner grocery store.

But, to be serious, isn't it ridiculous? That is too mild a word. It's crazy. Here we are paying more tax money to make certain that we will have to pay more money for our food. Why do we, a supposedly intelligent people put up with such arrogant nonsense?

Well, who have just elected a new Congress which will go into action next January. The first piece of business of the 81st Congress should be to unscramble this Government omelet; put a stop to this squandering of tax funds in order to keep food prices beyond our ability to pay.

You can make sure that Congress sees it duty and does it. Let your Congressman-elect know that you are "fed up" with this crack pot cockeyed Government planning—that you want eggs on your dining table not rotting in Government storehouses. That's how you can help bring about a restoration of friendly relations between THE EGG AND YOU.

HELLO AGAIN, BOYS AND GIRLS!!
Another Letter From Santa Claus
Hanover, Maine
December 16, 1948

Dear Boys and Girls—

Just a few lines from Santa Claus to say Hello again this week.

It certainly has been nice to see so many of you in my Hanover Workshop this past week. Santa is very glad that he was in his Workshop last Sunday. I didn't realize that there were so many boys and girls who could not have come to see me if I had not been working on Sunday. You can just bet Old Santa will be in his Hanover Workshop this coming Sunday also to see his boys and girls.

Things are about the same here—I am trying to hustle and have enough of your favorite toys etc. ready. If, when you come to see me, you find me in my overalls, don't be surprised—I'm so busy this year that I just can't take time to stop work and put on my best suit when you come to see me. I do hope you will understand.

I suppose that next week will be vacation week. Now, Santa wants to ask all of you to be careful while you are playing. There is always enough sadness without having any careless accidents. I don't want anyone to get sick or hurt—especially right at Christmas time. And above all, please try to keep out of mischief.

Goodbye now, until next week's letter.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Happenings That Affect the Dinner Table, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual—National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare

The millions of people, here and abroad, who read General Eisenhower's personal history of the war, "Crusade in Europe," which Doubleday recently published, will find it of interest to suit any taste. The accounts of the opposed personalities who occupied high positions; the descriptions of the campaigns; and the incredibly difficult problems of supply and logistics which confronted the commanders, the awful weight of responsibility which fell upon those who had to make final fateful decisions—all of these add up to make a chronicle which will certainly rank high among the histories of conflict.

Then there is another phase of war strategy, which is almost mentioned casually and at long intervals in the Supreme Commander's book, which is still stirring up much controversy, and which has a direct bearing on the present and future as well as in the past. That is the fact that war is fought on two levels—the military and the political. And, at times the gulf between them is almost unbridgeable.

This is best illustrated by what General Eisenhower says in the "longest-sustained" argument he had with Winston Churchill. Superficially, the argument was over the strategy and tactics the Allied powers should pursue in subduing Europe, and destroying Hitler and his armies. The General had decided to go through Southern France, as was finally done. The Prime Minister fought this plan to the end, and wished to move into the Balkans. Eisenhower says: "Although I never heard him say so, I felt that the Prime Minister's real concern was possibly of a political rather than a military nature. He may have thought that a postwar situation which would see the Western Allies posted in great strength in the Balkans would be far more effective in producing a stable post-hostilities world than if the Russian armies should be the ones to occupy that region."

It is a measure of Mr. Churchill's character that once the decision went against him, he ceased all argument and did everything in his power to assure the success of the plan which had been approved. But the all-important point which underlay this conflict in top policy is that the soldier and the statesman must often look toward a given goal with very different perspectives. Eisenhower was a soldier, and he had a soldier's concern for achieving military victory at the lowest cost in men, materials and time. Churchill was certainly not inconsiderable of these considerations—yet he felt it his responsibility to look beyond the formal peace, into the postwar world. Both men, according to their lights and their positions, were unassailably right.

Hindsight is easy for anyone, and it is fruitless to argue whether, in the long view of history, the Allies should have accepted Mr. Churchill's plan and fought the last war with the dual purpose of defeating the enemy and at the same time strengthening our position in Europe against a potential future enemy who was then an ally sworn to enduring friendship. This—like those decisions made at Yalta and Potsdam which have proven so palpably wrong—was the most difficult possible matter to decide at the time. But the fact that the best military minds and the best political minds can find themselves at so great a variance in dealing with problems of the utmost historical moment should be remembered as the events and policies of the present evolve.

For example, there is more and more concern over the emergence of military men as framers and exponents of our foreign policy. That is in no way a criticism of these men's abilities and characters, which are of the finest. But it does bring into focus the urgent problem of whether civilian authority, as in the past, shall control and be senior to military authority. In Japan, General MacArthur's authority is unquestioned. He formulates policy, instead of merely carrying out policy laid down by the State Department or other civilian agencies. The obvious fact that he has done a remarkable job does not obviate the equally obvious fact that here is a clear case of military rule which is directly responsible to no other authority.

Much the same situation exists in Germany. The abilities of General Clay as an administrator and arbitrator are high. But, as William Harlan Hale observes in an article in Harper's Magazine, "There is ample evidence that General Clay has been allowed to freewheel and make policy on his own. Many officials, both in Washington and in European capitals, add privately that he has not only made policy but has pitted his personal ideas against the expressed policies of the State Department, with almost variable success." It is, of course, a matter of point of view as to whether General Clay or the State Department have been right. But, going back to the principle, here we have another situation where, in the world's powder keg, a professional soldier exerts the only real authority. And his reports go to the Department of the Army, which decides what to do with them—not to any civilian agency of the gov-

Answer to last week's puzzle

EASY DOES IT

By HELEN MALE

WHEN cooking cereal which must remain in the double boiler overnight, pour a half cup of water over it. This prevents a hard crust from forming. In the morning, pour off the water and reheat the cereal.

Apples have thin skins and do not need to be peeled when you make sauce. You'll get more vitamins and flavor if you just quarter them and cook in barely enough water. After putting them through a sieve, add the sweetener.

To give vegetable soup an interesting flavor, add two or three whole cloves while cooking it. Discard the cloves just before serving.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Cinnamon Apple Salad (Serves 6)

- 4 apples
- 1 cup red cinnamon candies
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 2 cups water
- 3 tablespoons broken nut meats
- 10 dates, pitted and chopped
- 1/4 cup diced pineapple
- 1/4 cup salad dressing

Pare and core apples. Cook candies and sugar in water until dissolved; add whole apples and cook slowly until transparent but not soft. Chill. Stuff centers with combined remaining ingredients. Serve on lettuce.

To reheat leftover meat, place it in a heavy iron skillet, cover completely with lettuce leaves and place in a moderate oven. The meat keeps its flavor and moisture when warmed in this way.

Turnips will not taste as strong if they are cooked with a few white potatoes. Mash the potatoes with them before serving.

Cook macaroni and spaghetti in a colander placed in a pot of boiling salted water. You won't have to stir later be worried about having it boil over or have it stick.

Never use a rolling pin back and forth when making pie crust. Roll away from you, lifting the pin each time as the crust will be more flaky.

Spiced vinegar from sweet mixed pickles should be saved and used in salad dressing to perk it up. It's especially good for potato salad.

Save the water in which you cook or can asparagus and use for a thin white sauce for other vegetables or as a soup base. There are lots of minerals in it.

Successful Parenthood

BY MRS. CATHERINE CONRAD EDWARDS

Associate Editor, Parents' Magazine

RECENTLY we saw a film which was a sincere plea to parents to equip their boys and girls with understanding of the sex drive and its consequences if uncontrolled. The story of the film is told without sensationalism and the sequences which expose the danger to a girl's life of having an abortion performed are particularly effective.

But the film, with all its good intentions, leaves a superficial impression of the responsibilities of parents in regard to sex education. For it implies that mere knowledge of the facts of reproduction would have saved the girl and boy, both of them nice, likeable youngsters, from getting into trouble. Life is never as simple as that.

It takes strong character and a secure sense of personal worth, as well as knowledge of risks, to keep a natural impulse within the bounds society has decreed. It also requires a sense of dedication to one's unborn children on the part of both a boy and a girl. This, far more than clinical information (though that is important too) helps young people to control their desires until a proper family life is ready to receive and nurture children.

Indeed, many of the safeguards against self-indulgence are in the realm of spirit, as well as knowledge, and it is here that many intelligent parents flounder. For you can't begin suddenly in the teens to teach children spiritual values and expect them to take hold. (Later on, life and experience may prove the need for things of the spirit, but that is learning the hard way.) But children who live from birth in an atmosphere where love, kindness, honesty and fairness shine forth have an image and ideal of home life which is worth waiting for. This is the best bulwark against illicit sex that any young person can have.

Even in the practical realm of giving children adequate information about sex, example plays as great a part as words. For instance, in the film to which we referred there is an incident which shows the mother attempting to give her daughter belated instruction in modesty by suggesting that she wear a beautiful pin to minimize the low cut of her dance frock. The girl removes the pin as soon as her mother leaves the room. And it is no wonder, for the mother herself is seen wearing a shockingly revealing harem costume for a club masquerade ball. That you can't act one way and talk another is one of the basic rules in dealing with children.

Another blind side to many films on sex education addressed to parents is that the girl's parents are held mostly to blame when things go wrong. Certainly the responsibility is equal for the boy's parents. There is, however, one way in which parents of daughters, even conscientious ones, often fail. And that is in teaching a girl her role in helping preserve a boy's ideals of sex relations. Boys are usually inculcated with a sense of responsibility toward virginity, but girls often seem totally lacking in any sense of guilt about arousing a boy's ardor.

Fewer young people today than for several generations have notions about evading parenthood. They all seem to want three or four children. So it is more than ever tragic when they flounder into promiscuity, often through lack of understanding of the happiness and completeness to be found in marriage and parenthood.

Christmas is coming! Great time for good little girls and boys... lots of toys... and culinary joys! You'll be Santa's Number One Helper—if you depend on A&P to supply your Christmas feast!... and serve taste tempters like these!

AMMM... FUDGE!

Give taste buds a delightful nudge with Creamy Pineapple Fudge. Combine 1 cup WHITE HOUSE MILK (from A&P) with 3 cups sugar and 1/4 cup unweakened pineapple juice. Cook to soft ball stage, 235°F. Remove from heat, add 2 tablespoons margarine. Cool without stirring. When cool add 2 teps. lemon juice. Beat. Pour into greased 8"x8" pan and mark into squares. Makes 4 delightful desserts.

WATCH 'EM COP THE CUP CAKES!

These will disappear fast as Santa's reindeer. Place 3/4 cup shortening in bowl. Sift 1 1/2 cups SUNNYFIELD CAKE FLOUR with 2 teps. salt into bowl. Add 1/4 cup milk, 1 tsp. vanilla. Beat 1 minute (count 150 strokes per minute). Add 2 unbeaten eggs. Blend and beat 2 minutes. Put 1 tep. preserve into each cup of greased muffin pan. Pour in batter. Bake in moderate oven, 375°F., for 25 minutes. Makes 12 cup cakes.

FREEZE CHEESE TO PLEASE!

Set one of these out for Santa—he'll love Frozen Cream Cheese Salad. Rub garlic in bowl. Add two 8-ounce packages cream cheese creamed with 1 cup milk. Add 1 tep. vinegar and 1/4 cup sliced ANN PAGE STUFFED OLIVES from A&P. Pour into refrigerator tray and chill. Serve on lettuce. And let us all remember—famous ANN PAGE foods are of value-packed A&P stores only.

SOMETHING SUMPTUOUS!

With happy holidays ahead, there's nothing nicer to have on hand than one of A&P's famous JANE PARKER FRUIT CAKES. They're full to bursting with glacé cherries, golden pineapples, raisins and pecans. Over 1/4 of every cake is fruit and nuts. No wonder they're America's most popular fruit cakes.
